Langwathby Methodist Chapel

Hello! My name's Lindsay Harrod and I'm the new curate. Having spent the last two years training at Cranmer Hall – a Theological College in Durham – I moved to Langwathby and was ordained at Carlisle Cathedral on 24th June.

I will be here for the next 3-4 years, learning on the job as I work alongside Rev Canon Katharine Butterfield, Rev Andrew Burrell, Rev David Milner and Rev Keith Speck, covering an area of the Eden Valley including villages such as Culgaith, Great and Little Salkeld, Kirkland, Kirkoswald, Langwathby, Lazonby and Renwick.

I was brought up in Tonbridge, West Kent where my parents still live. I studied Agricultural Animal Science at Leeds University way back in the 1980s and since then have done a variety of jobs including publishing, laboratory work, instructing outdoor pursuits, and working for South Lakeland District Council where I produced maps and gathered data into complex spread sheets!

My favourite holiday destination is Scotland, particularly the more mountainous regions and islands. I am a keen parkrunner (if you don't know about parkrun just ask me!) and enjoy wild swimming as well as mountain 'bagging'. I also enjoy wandering round National Trust gardens, solving cryptic crossword puzzles and chatting to friends over tea and cake.

Whilst a southerner by birth and accent, I'm a northerner by choice, having made my home in Kendal until – much to my surprise – I felt called to ordained ministry. I gave up my job, left my friends and my church family, gave away my furniture, let my house out to tenants and moved to Durham to become a student again. It's been a big challenge, but also a great privilege and I'm delighted to be here, beginning to find my way around and meeting lots of friendly locals.

I'm really looking forward to getting to know you and discovering how best to serve the community. So if you see an unfamiliar woman wearing a dog-collar (hopefully soon with Bedlington terrier puppy, too!), give me a wave or better still come and say hello!

Rev. Lindsay Harrod

Help for farmers, by farmers: regenerative agriculture videos

By Andi Chapple

UK farming is facing a perfect storm. Costs of inputs (for example fertiliser, pesticide and fuel) are soaring, weather patterns (and the climate) are changing and there is a new funding system for farmers to get used to.

You may have heard of 'regenerative' farming. It teaches us to see food production as integrated with nature and helps to build up local food systems. It can reduce inputs (and bring down costs), increase profitability and future-proof farm businesses. It suits upland livestock as well as market gardening and arable.

The Northern Real Farming Conference (NRFC) supports regenerative farming. With support from WWF-UK's Land, Food and Farming Fund, we have made a series of videos to help farmers research the approach. They show farmers talking about their experiences and offering concentrated practical advice on the profits and pitfalls of changing land management methods.

In 'Three Regenerative Farming Projects', Cumbrian farmers talk about how they have changed to 'rotational grazing' of sheep and cows - moving stock every day or two and letting the grass regrow - and how they now don't buy in feed or fertiliser and their farms are in profit.

In 'Local Wool and Textile Production', you can hear about the stories behind new Lake District tweeds, a British wool database for weavers and knitters and yarn making from sheep local to the shop.

The videos are available at www.northernrealfarming.org/video-resources/ and they are really worth a watch even if you don't farm yourself! Do have a look and join our farmers' network.

UNPRINTABLE (Silverpen)

Langwathby Church Renovation Fund's Sale of Work (3 stalls) and concert that evening, Thursday 27th July in the Reading Room, made £51-6s-9d (now £4104). The concert (Nurse Wilson in the Chair) included, "Come to the Fair" (Senior Girls); "Shipmate O'mine" (Mr. S Wood).

Cumberland County Council pondered the state of Langwathby Bridge's east approaches, now undercut by the river. Needs £50 to 'fettle' it (now £4000), no action yet.

Wednesday 3rd August was Langwathby and Edenhall WI's 2nd birthday. Mrs Nelson invited them to 'Stratheden' to celebrate it (business meeting, games, tea and a special birthday cake).

Mr W.G. Raine has worked in Glasgow G.P.O. these 37 years and now has just retired to Carlisle. He's on Edenhall land, the son of the late Mr. E. Raine, Head Gamekeeper for years to Sir R. G. Musgrave.

Mr. F. Burton, a farmer's son in Hunsonby, was driving on the main road to Allonby when a car sped out on a crossroads, hit his car, knocking it over (much damage) and drove off at once, leaving him and his passengers stranded and dazed (report 26th August).

EDEN ANIMAL RESCUE NEEDS YOUR CLUTTER!!!

The Eden Animal Rescue shop in Penrith relocated to bigger and more central premises in Great Dockray last December. It has a reputation for selling quality items at very reasonable prices, served by the friendly and helpful volunteers. Every penny raised goes towards the care of the animals at the Re-homing Centre.

The shop receives regular donations of items to sell but is in particular need of such things as ornaments, china and general house ware. So if you are thinking of having a bit of a 'clearout' the shop would welcome whatever you decide you don't need.

The shop is open from 10am –4pm Monday –Saturday and you can drop items off there. (Tel. 01768 890001) Or alternatively call Fran Flower on 01768 88469 if you would like us to collect.
